Re: Docket No. 98N-1038

To whom it may concern:

As the owner of a food manufacturing company, and as a consumer, I am concerned about the labelling of irradiated foods. Any food that has been irradiated should be so labelled. This information should be easy to read and prominently displayed. The public has a right to know which foods have been irradiated, just as we have a right to know how many calories are in a serving. If a food is unpackaged, such as fresh produce, there should be signage nearby indicating which foods have been irradiated. Since the FDA has concluded that irradiation is a "material fact" of food processing, this fact should be disclosed.

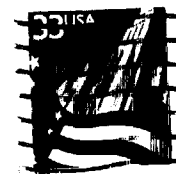

Sincerely yours,
